Tracy Requests More Instructions

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—State Auditor Tracy, as a member of the state blue commission in a statement issued here today declared that the general assembly should give more definite instructions as to the location of the proposed building.

The entire matter presented so many angles and was deemed to be of such vital importance to the state that the director representatives of the people, would in our opinion, give more definite instructions as to the location of the proposed building.

"This would involve the early attention of the general assembly, particularly on account of the fact that there is no adequate provision for the filing of valuable records, very many of which could be lost in the event of loss by fire."

White House Ice Box Bulges; Thanksgiving Gifts Pour In WASHINGTON, November 20.—(By the United Press)—A heavily laden table will confront the president and Mrs. Coolidge when the dinner gong rings at the White House Thanksgiving Day.

The White House ice box is bulging with gifts showered on the executive family for Thanksgiving. Several turkeys, five wild geese, three barrels of apples, a barrel of potatoes, a number of cases of maple syrup, three crates of oysters, ten bushels of cranberries and a number of hams already have been received and deposited in the executive refrigerator.

The greater part of this quantity of gifts, will be distributed by Mr. Coolidge to his White House staff in keeping with custom. Very often the president gives it all away, getting his turkey from the government controlled center market here, but the White House cooks this year were silent as to whether the president had done this or not.

The president plans to spend the day quietly. He may go to his desk for about an hour and then attend services with Mrs. Coolidge at the First Congregational Church where he worships here. Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, close personal friends, will be the only guests at the mansion on the day of Thanksgiving. They have been at the White House since the election.

Depression in Live Stock Industry Source of Concern to Officials; Market Glutted and Prices Down

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1924 by Times Publishing Company.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The usual predictions are being made that America will face an era of high prices in meats and a cattle shortage three years hence because of the large quantity of breeding animals being fed to slaughter. The depression in the live stock industry is of no little concern here as the market is glutted and prices are down. Indeed, this is the only phase of the agricultural situation which is conspicuous in the discussions of farm relief at the moment.

In answer to the forecasts of an ultimate shortage in range cattle, the answer is made in some quarters here that the secretary of agriculture's report in 1923 predicted the same thing for 1923 but it failed to materialize. The reason probably is that the cattle population of the country has been difficult to measure especially since the stimulus given to production during the war.

Just what are the factors most responsible for the depression, therefore, are matters on which official Washington is not too well informed. In the eighteen states in which cattle raising is an important industry the opinions of the cattle men seem to differ. Some say the drought is the principal reason for the poor condition of the cattle sent to market and the low prices offered. Others say it is the high price of corn which makes the farmer in the corn belt less anxious to buy from the range. Still another contention is that the cattle men are not getting out of their production the proper proportion of what the consumer is paying for the meat he buys.

Attempt To Blast C o a l Tipple PLOTTER BARES BLACKMAILING OF A PRINCE

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., November 20.—(By the Associated Press)—The Shivers Coal Company settlement on Scott's Run, an open shop operation, was the scene of disorders early today, during which a child was wounded seriously and an attempt made to dynamite the tipple.

Two charges of dynamite ripped on a part of the approach to the tipple and damaged the loading apparatus. The blasts were followed by a fusillade of rifle shots from a hillside. Five-year-old Sarah Stokes, standing in the doorway of the cabin occupied by her parents, sustained a wound in the chest. Physicians said she could not live.

The force of the blast was felt at Morgantown and Sheriff W. M. Vest, accompanied by a detachment of state troopers went to the scene. The officers found 150 sticks of dynamite under a pile of straw besides the tipple. This charge had failed to explode.

Victims Capture One Robber But Another Shoots Three of Them

GRANDVIEW, November 20.—(By the United Press)—Police are combing the city for two robbers who shot and probably fatally wounded three men after holding up their fruit and grocery store Tuesday night.

The robbers' victims are: John Emmlin, 35, proprietor of the store; Gregory Emmlin, 17, nephew of John; Sackis Keshishian, 22, another nephew. They are in a critical condition in St. Luke's Hospital.

Physicians operated on John Emmlin in the hope of saving his life. He was shot in the abdomen. Little hope is held for his recovery.

Sackis was shot just below the heart in turning a corner in the street. The three were shot by the second robber after they had captured the first one across the street from where the robbery took place. The robbers then made their escape.

They obtained $75 from the register.

British Recognize That Soldiers Are Liable to Profanity

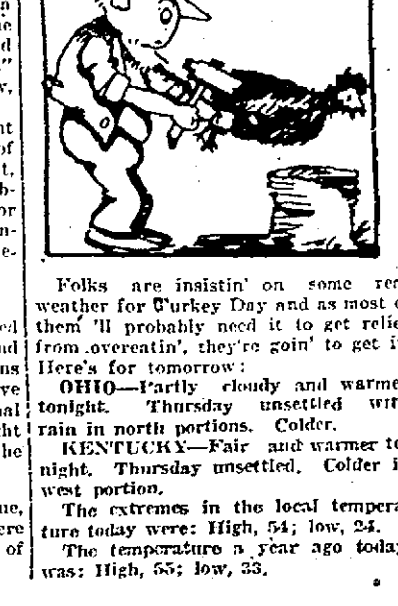

LONDON, November 20.—(By the Associated Press)—British military law recognizes the fact that soldiers are liable to outbursts of profanity, and when a private of the First Royal Dragoons was charged at an Aldershot court martial recently with using indecorous language toward a sergeant, he was acquitted on the ground that the expressions he used were "common barracks room language." The British manual of military law, cited by the defense in the case, says: "A soldier frequently uses violent language which is a mere outburst of momentary irritation or excitement, without at all intending to be insulting. Allowance must be made for coarse expressions which a man of inferior education will use as mere expletives."

Mr. Miller Tells Kiwanians About His Trip to Europe

Hon. Harry W. Miller, prominent barrister, was the honored guest of the Kiwanis Club at the Wednesday noon luncheon held at the Mary Louise, and gave the members a pretty picture of his recent travels in Europe.

Mr. Miller spoke as an altruistic, giving the members something to think about along civic lines. He told of how the people of Europe benefited their cities and how American cities could be made as beautiful if the people would follow along the same lines, even though it took years of effort and labor—the result being worth all the cost. Mr. Miller paid a high tribute to the people of Old England, stating that they were especially gracious to Americans and courteous to a fault. He was given a splendid hearing and assured that his address was one of the best ever given before the club. Election of officers will be held on next Wednesday. Tickets are now in the hands of those members who were present and Secretary H. Glenn Duns will busy himself distributing ballots to those who were detained at home or at business.

Rules on Tax Valuation

COLUMBUS, O., November 26.—(By the Associated Press)—Attorney General Crabbe today ruled that when a county auditor certifies that property is not on the tax duplicate at its true valuation and such finding is confirmed by the county commissioners, it is the duty of the auditor to re-appraise the property and that the old valuation is not a legal basis for taxation for the current year.

The question arose in Delaware county where the officials are now unable to collect much of December taxes because of the ruling. The attorney general said he knew of no other such situations in the state.

Sydney Learns What It Will Cost To Serve A Thanksgiving Dinner

(By Sydney Strang)

Mrs. Portsmouth was pleasantly surprised when she went shopping for her Thanksgiving dinner (this year, for turkeys were only 60 cents per pound, the lowest they have been for several seasons. We trailed around after her for a while this morning and listened in on the plans for several Thanksgiving dinners.

"I'm to have twelve for dinner, so I'll take a 10 pound turkey, please send it out by noon, if possible," one competent looking matron announced in a butcher shop.

"No, we're not having turkey this year, John asked for goose as a change," her friend remarked.

"How much?"

"Forty cents per pound."

And one hostess was planning to make a roast chicken the "piece de resistance" of her feast and was paying 35 cents per pound for it.

Another eager marketer described a center dish of roast fresh pork, circled with a little sausage and bright red roasted apples that made our mouth water. And her dinner wasn't going to be very expensive, for the best grade of pork was but 25 cents per pound.

We "switched" a bill out of Mrs. Portsmouth's market basket to see what else she was buying and found cranberries listed at 20 cents per quart; celery (extra fine) at 15 cents a bunch; head lettuce, 25 cents per pound; apples, three pounds for a quarter; oranges 40 cents a dozen; I always like a bowl of nuts to pass with the coffee, but they're pretty high this year. The finest ones, almonds, pecans and Brazil nuts, are about 30 cents per pound.

"We think we simply have to have a few dates and figs. Of course there are a number of grapes, but the finest imported ones are 50 cents per pound for figs and 35 for dates."

"My dear, have you noticed that it's our coffee that is going to cost the most this year? Amelium grade has jumped to 60 cents a pound. I think I'll just serve tiny cups of after-dinner black coffee."

"We keep our fruit cake until Christmas, but Aunt Mabel tells me she is serving hers tomorrow, and she paid a dollar a pound for it."

"Do you make your own mince-meat, Helen?"

"Gracious, no. You can buy a can for 26 cents per pound, and with the addition of a few apples one can make two pies, and I wouldn't bother with all that chopping and fussing for anything."

"Now a bit of cheese (will insist on Roquefort) and some olives, and I believe I have everything I need. Of course, potatoes and peas and always have in the house."

A hungry newspaper reporter quit eaves-dropping and went and bought a bowl of bean soup.

British Have Hard Time Tuning in American Stations

LONDON, November 26.—(By the United Press)—A correspondent of the United Press listened throughout the night in company with K. P. Crews, of Golder Green, a prominent British amateur. At about 11:40 p. m. London time, which is 6:40 p. m. American Eastern Standard time, Station KDKA, East Pittsburgh, was tuned in. The announcements, however, were mainly inaudible and it was impossible to make the music audible.

Efforts were made to tune in American broadcasters on higher wave lengths. Good carrier waves were received, but only faint and distorted speech and music could be tuned in, the origin of which it was impossible to determine, due to continual fading and the barrage of atmospherics.

At 3:45 a. m. London time (10:45 p. m. Eastern Standard Time) KDKA was again tuned in by Crews and the United Press official listener. Organizers of the tests in Britain have thus far reported no logs on American stations from any amateurs.

Station KDKA, East Pittsburgh, is controlled by the Westinghouse Electric. Its wave length is 325 meters, but in tests of this character, KDKA's programs are duplicated on a low wave, which experiments have shown possesses the best carrying quality.

Victor Cadwallader, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cadwallader of Wamsleyville, Adams county was shot while hunting near his home Tuesday morning and was brought to Mercy Hospital early this morning in a very serious condition. The contents of a shotgun lodged in his right thigh and he suffered so greatly from shock and loss of blood that his recovery is doubtful.

The youth was shot while alone at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and lay in the woods until 2 p. m. Tuesday. The youth was brought to Mercy hospital in a machine driven by a neighbor, Samuel Covert and was attended by Dr. J. N. Ellison.

The cries of the wounded lad were finally heard by his little sister Nellie, aged 8, who after considerable difficulty located her brother and then ran breathlessly back to notify her parents. The victim had lost so much blood that he was in a very weakened condition when found. At Mercy hospital this afternoon it was stated that the boy's condition was so precarious that no attempt was made to amputate the leg near the hip.

Four Propositions To Aid The Farmer At the Coming Session of Congress

WASHINGTON, November 26.—(By the Associated Press)—Plans for the aid of the farmer at the short session of congress are understood to include a four-fold proposition, co-operative marketing, preferred railroad rates for farm products, development of the European markets and easier credit for the cattle raiser.

The agriculture commissioner is expected by members of congress studying the question to submit a preliminary report within the next month recommending these features as the basis for legislation. Those most directly concerned with farm aid measures declare themselves optimistic over the attitude the president will take toward the report. Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, spokesman for the western farm bloc who recently discussed the agricultural situation with President Coolidge, said today that in his opinion the commission's report would offer a solution of the farmer's difficulties.

The domestic marketing situation, he said, can be solved by properly operated co-operative marketing agencies with support and the European market can be stimulated through the service of the diplomats and attachment of the commerce department. Before the American farmer can receive permanent relief the Kansas senator said, some means must be provided to overcome South American competition in the livestock trade and Canadian competition in the wheat trade. He believed this could be done by co-operation between the American foreign agent and the department of agriculture.

QUESTION—"As one of your patients who came to Chiropractic for all kinds of family ills, allow me to suggest that you tell people more of what you can do for ailments. People need this knowledge."

ANSWER—"We thank you for the suggestion. Although we have answered inquiries along this line before, we are glad of another opportunity. Sick folks should not jeopardize their lives by taking Chiropractic as a last resort. How much more sensible to call the Chiropractor first. How much suffering, anxiety, loss of time and expense might be saved if the Chiropractor is called in to attend the acute ailments, such as fevers, cold, inflammations, etc. You know that Chiropractic can restore health after the disease has continued many years and has been pronounced incurable. Then isn't it reasonable to suppose that much quicker and better results could have been obtained had we been consulted in the beginning? When sickness first appears—

by EDMUND SNELL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Corrigan, proprietor of the great Orange-Futch estate, is bound for Borneo in the little Dutch coasting steamer Hausfab. Another passenger on the boat is Mrs. Irene Matheson. Corrigan's great first wife, the first mate, who has been abusing a native woman aboard ship. His gallant act is applauded by Mrs. Matheson.

Corrigan and Irene Matheson go ashore at Labuan, and Corrigan learns that her husband is Hope-Matheson, a man of ill-repute throughout Borneo. In the next house at Labuan, Corrigan shows Matheson the little image of a cat, carved in bone. There is only one other cat like it in the world, he says, and that is in the possession of the woman he is destined to marry. Just then Hope-Matheson enters the place drunk and abusive, and threatens to "break every bone" in Corrigan's body. Hope-Matheson takes his wife away and Corrigan remains behind to wait for the next boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The red sun was dropping over the horizon as the white motorboat with its striped awning swept through palm-grove islets toward the harbor. "Jesselton," said Rakkes, the owner of the boat, throwing aside an Overseas Edition that was hopelessly out of date.

"Ah!" said Corrigan.

"Guess I shall start back tomorrow."

"As soon as that?"

"Must. Duty calls! Not like you sailors, you know, that can wander the world's surface at will. I got to keep our noses to the grindstone."

"Does anyone work in Labuan?" inquired Corrigan innocently.

"They creep in under the long white jerry and, leaving Rakkes' men to shift for themselves, make their way toward the club house on the hill."

Corrigan sat by the veranda rail, staring into the night which throbbled with insect life. The chair opposite him was temporarily vacant; Rakkes was bending over a table, varying with a trio of old acquaintances. Sounds of riotous laughter came from the billiard room, the bar, the billiard room, the bar.

He tore open the envelope and drew out a single sheet of foreign note-paper.

"For God's sake, come to me," he read. "Be prepared for anything—iron."

There rolled on to the wooden surface before his startled eyes the image of a Chinese cat—the exact replica of the one that still rested in the bottom of his pocket.

Corrigan's guide had disappeared. He fastened his pony to a post and saw, through the vast forest of mature rubber trees, the bright lights of a house. Close on twenty-four hours had elapsed since he had received that tragic S. O. S. He prayed to heaven he had not come too late. He smiled grimly as he strode up the steep path, gauging ever to right and to left, with the wariness of a man who is accustomed to walk in strange places alone. Corrigan had no room in his mind for consequences. Cost what it might, he had come to steal the wife of the man none other dared tackle. "From the end of the earth," he had promised her, and Corrigan never broke faith.

Presently, he halted and listened intently. There was a noise going on up there that puzzled him. As he started forward again, he knew, rather than saw, that someone was coming toward him. He darted behind a tree, as the dim outline of a swart native swung into view on the path ten yards above him. Corrigan could just make out a couplet hat and something the man carried over his right shoulder. He had heard of head-gruesome stories of Borneo head-hunters. "When you see a head-carrying," he had been warned, "Corrigan took no risks. He sprang on Hope-Matheson's henchman like a tiger, and knocked him senseless with the magazine of his revolver.

As he emerged into the open land beyond the trees, a gust of smoke swept from a veritable furnace, choking him. Horror-stricken, he saw a circle of fire and in it, like a grim set-piece, the fast-consuming headquarters of Hope-Matheson.

Above the sound of crackling wood and the crashing of falling timbers, he thought he heard a man's voice singing. The wild song borne on the breeze that fanned the flames until the roof of dried sago-leaves burst into a sea of leaping fire, grew louder and louder, and, presently, the great view of the planter lurched into form. Like a man in a dream, Corrigan watched him feeding the flames from a petrol can, the very surface of the metal container flecked with tongues of light.

Corrigan caught him by the arm and swung him round to face him. The madman clutched at his coat, but Corrigan got there first. He held a blue barrel under Hope-Matheson's nose.

"Out with it, you hell-hound," he shouted, his head thrust forward. "What have you done with her?"

"The planter's glassy eyes surveyed him from head to toe.

"If you know who you're talking to," he demanded drunkenly, waving one arm like a pump-handle. "Because, if you don't I'll tell you."

Corrigan, beside himself, struck him several times in the chest.

"Quick," he almost screamed. "Where is she?"

"She—Oh!—Irene?" A cunning look came into his eyes. "You're a little too late, old son," he said. "Be-hold! Her funeral pyre!"

"My God!" cried Corrigan and plunged in through the doorway, under an archway of fire. He heard the yelling, shouting, incoherently after him, heard him empty his revolver into the inferno. He found a bedroom. It was unoccupied, but he dipped a towel into a water jug and knotted it behind his head. In a third apartment, where the blazing roof showered glowing fragments, he found her, bound hand and foot. The terror faded from her eyes as she recognized him, even before he had torn the towel from his head. He soaked it again and fastened it round her, then bore her, like a doll through the tottering ruin into the outer air beneath the stars.

The roof crashed in behind him and a furnace, in which no living thing could survive, roared to the heavens.

Corrigan gulping for breath carried her beyond the zone of the conflagration. He cut her bonds, drawing the rope gently from the raw wounds it had made at her wrists and ankles. With the unobscured towel he extinguished those portions of her clothing in which the fire had taken hold.

He held her as they cantered toward the dawn.

"She was a thought reader, Corrigan," she said. She had never heard his other name.

Suddenly she screamed aloud and pointed wildly into what was left of the house.

Corrigan looked. He saw a small head on giant shoulders hang for a moment, twitching convulsively, grotesquely, in the very center of the inferno—then pitch forward into the blaze.

He held her in front of him on his sturdy pony, canting toward the dawn.

She looked up at him through misted eyes. With that firm sup-porting her, she felt as though she could never be tired again.

"Corrigan's way," she murmured, echoing something he had once said. "You can't beat it."

"She was a thought reader, Corrigan," she said. She had never heard his other name.

Suddenly she screamed aloud and pointed wildly into what was left of the house.

Corrigan looked. He saw a small head on giant shoulders hang for a moment, twitching convulsively, grotesquely, in the very center of the inferno—then pitch forward into the blaze.

He held her in front of him on his sturdy pony, canting toward the dawn.

She looked up at him through misted eyes. With that firm sup-porting her, she felt as though she could never be tired again.

"Corrigan's way," she murmured, echoing something he had once said. "You can't beat it."

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — LANKY LAND

When the top of Lanky Hill was finally reached Flip was unblinded and the little auto was pushed right at the brink of the long slope. "Somebody should get in the car to steer it," said Jack. "Oh, I will, replied one of the lanky men. "I know how to steer an automobile."

And with that, the lanky man stepped into the car. The way he did it made Jack laugh heartily. He was so tall that he just lifted one foot high, with one step, was standing in the car. "Sit down behind the wheel. That's where you have to steer from," laughed Jack.

Bishop Defends Young People; Decries Attacks on Modern Styles

COLUMBUS, Nov. 23.—Unsympathetic criticism of the younger generation which has been in evidence for 4,000 years, drives young people from the church, Bishop Edwin Holt, Hughes, Chicago, declared here last night in an address before Methodist Episcopal ministers and laymen at the closing session of the M. E. Men's Council.

Bishop Hughes declared attacks on modern styles, amusements and tendencies asserting only a tender guiding attitude would win the faith of young people for Christianity. A critical attitude toward young people is not God-like and is un-Christian, he charged.

"The relations between the passing and the coming generations seem never to be as strained as now," he continued. "Many people are engaged in criticism of the shirtwaists, shoes, stockings, complexion and language of the coming generation. I have traced this habit of regarding the young people on the verge of a precipice clear back to an inscription on the tomb of a king who died 2,000 years before Christ. The epitaph of this king said young people were on the road to destruction."

Predictions Shattered
"Do you remember back in the '80s when the skating rink craze hit young people and they went off to the skating rinks and amusements and evenings every day? Some long faced persons with their mouths turned down said all the young people were going to perdition. But they didn't."

"Do you remember back in the '90s when the bicycle craze came and then the bicycle with the side saddle developed and young people went off on long rides instead of going to church? One minister actually preached a sermon in which he called the bicycle a threat against the church. Many of the young people of that day are here tonight. You didn't go to perdition."

"Whenever a lot of men at middle age or approaching old, sit back with folded hands and act as if they were saints when they were young, I am here to tell you they were not."

"Take styles. A whole lot is said today about bobbed hair. What kind of hair were your wives wearing back in the '80s? If you get out the family album you will see your wives with bangs on their foreheads and really, they don't look very bright."

New Styles Better
"And then, short skirts. Do you remember the skirts of the Lucy Webb period? Hoop skirts so big that two girls couldn't pass on the sidewalk. At a party only three or four could get into an ordinary parlor. If it comes to a choice between hoop skirts and modern walking skirts, I think I know which you would choose."

"You could not hold the throbbing, pulsating young life by adult vinegar. Never were young people hurried into complex life so fast as they are today. This in the telephone age, the auto age, the radio age, the moving picture age, and the airplane age. Young people hurried into a period so complex as ours need our sympathy."

"As a man grows old in Christ, he develops a parental sense toward all young people. If you have lost sympathy for young people, you have lost children in sympathy of the heart."

"The man or woman in normal health who does not like children is selfish, mean and contemptible. They are unlike God as revealed in Jesus Christ. The present attitude of a person toward childhood and youth is the finest possible test of youth."

Found good fishing thru open window

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Some one found the fishing hole through the half open window of the first floor bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gilchrist today.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist, returning home later, discovered the purse was gone and reported the theft to police. The gas pipe and hook were found on the ground beside the window.

Depression

catle (the problem of marketing other agricultural products is looked upon as one that has to be solved before any of the other factors can be clearly marked out and tackled. The suggestion has been made to the new Agricultural commission presided over by former Governor Carey of Wyoming that co-operative marketing associations be formed for the handling of cattle just as has been successfully done with other commodities. In periods of depression there is a glut on the market due either to inability to get the proper extension of credit or to an individual unwillingness to hold in the face of an adverse market situation. The cooperative idea has been responsible for the more orderly marketing of some products and while no definite plan has been worked out for livestock except that credit facilities are better now than they were a few years ago the authorities here recognize that a solution is essential.

There is some hope that the agricultural commission will give its first attention to the livestock problem and possibly prevent in January a situation which would relate to legislation or the application of the cooperative idea to the cattle industry.

The new commission is really at the moment more important so far as agricultural policy is concerned than the Department of Agriculture itself. Assistant Secretary Gage who has been appointed Secretary to serve until March 4th only because he has been elected Governor of West Virginia will not have the opportunity to do more than keep things going as they are in the agricultural department. The new secretary will no doubt be chosen when some suggestions on policy have been received from the new commission and it would not be surprising if some member of the commission were to be appointed Secretary of Agriculture to carry forward the work of the commission.

Drink Water If Back Or Kidneys Hurt

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back, or else headache, dizziness, the stomach, sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channel often gets irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's uric waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, a emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to attack the germ that is the cause of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after a cold or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking Creomulsion. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, a emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to attack the germ that is the cause of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after a cold or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking Creomulsion. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement

A Help And An Honor To The City

Bringing all its books and accounts to balance the Commercial Building and Loan company happily finds that for 1924 it can add another year of unbroken usefulness and growth to its full thirty years of endeavor.

Possibly, there may be another institution of the sort that may compare with the Commercial in its splendid career, but there is certainly none that can surpass it. From its inception to this very day it has been conducted with signal safety and success, being a vital factor in the development of Portsmouth, a factor whose value is inestimable, because it has been the means of teaching thousands the virtue of even small savings and providing homes for hundreds.

When the history and character of the Commercial is studied the wonder is why so many people put thousands of dollars in outside investments of which they can know nothing, often to their entire loss, when almost at their doors is a business that affords entire safety and a substantial profit. For well conducted building association is the securest and best place on earth to put your savings and your funds, because it loans on the soundest of all guarantees, real estate first mortgages and it is as near certain as any mortal undertaking can be to return regular and continuous dividends.

Here is one remarkable feature about the Commercial Building and Loan Company that is not familiar to most investors, it is not operated for profit to itself, nor are big salaries paid to executives. The main idea of a building association is to encourage thrift and enable every industrious man to own his own home. To that end its gains are devoted principally to paying a fair return on money deposited with it and making the easiest possible terms for the borrower to pay his loans. So the officers and directors give their time and ability to it for merely a nominal fee and only the managing secretary gets a substantial salary, other employees being paid current wages.

The Commercial has carried on its business with singular judgment and benefit to patrons of each class, depositor and borrower. It has never had to take real estate on foreclosure of mortgage, each and every year it has paid 6% dividend to depositors and so economical has been its management that it has accumulated a large surplus as further guarantee to its patrons.

PUT YOUR MONEY WHERE IT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE AND WHERE IT WILL GROW INTO MORE MONEY!

Showing the handsome growth of a quarter of a million dollars for the twelve months just passed the Commercial presents the following:

BRINGING UP FATHER

Tuberculosis Clinic Will Be Held Here

A tuberculosis clinic with thorough physical examination of persons be-lieved to have incipient cases of the disease will be conducted in Scioto county in the next few weeks as part of the state and district health pro-gram, as announced by Dr. R. W. De-Crow, district health commissioner, and Dr. O. D. Tarte, city health com-missioner, following receipt from the State Department of Health of an or-der to install such service here. This service will be without expense to those examined. The health commissioners have suggested December 9 and 10 as the most convenient time for holding the clinic, which will extend over two days. Three recognized chest exam-iners will conduct the examina-tions, assisted by a nurse from the State Department of Health.

The word "bachelor" is derived from an old word meaning "cow-herd"—a term that came to be applied to men who had not yet reached the full dignity of manly responsibility.

Help Take Care of Needy By Joining the Red Cross

(By Sydney Strange)

About a month ago we went with the Red Cross nurse into the hills to find a little girl who could not go to school because she could not see to read or write.

"Sister" and her mother were on the porch of the little house and the week's washing was drying on fence rails. "Sister's" eyes were covered with a white film and she had to spend most of her days just lying on the bed or sitting passively on the porch. The Red Cross nurse examined the little girl's eyes and was shown the medicine which had been prescribed by a doctor in a nearby state.

The Red Cross has kept in touch with Sister and she is being taken care of at one of the clinics.

And now with the cold winter coming on Sister's home has been burned to the ground and the family is in greater need than ever. In the various department stores and in the postoffice and other public buildings interested women will take your membership dues to the American Red Cross. Fifty cents of your dollar stays here to help such folks as "Sister" and 50 cents of your dollar is turned over to the national organization to help in times of great disaster. But two days remain in which to sign up. Join Now!

Keeping Millions Free From Colds and La Grippe

W. H. HILL'S LIFE WORK

Colds cause more illness than any other human ailment. Realizing this 50 years ago, W. H. Hill determined to develop a quick-acting scientifically correct cold and la grippe remedy.

Years of research brought success. Mr. Hill discovered a most remarkable formula. He backed it with energy, faith, integrity and a name that meant "satisfaction or money back."

Today more than 4,000,000 families—one-fifth of America's population—use and recommend Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine.

The formula has never been changed in a quarter century. What Hill's has done for millions, it can do for you. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait. All druggists, 30 cents.

Woman Here To Direct Lions' Club Minstrel

Madame Mabel Chennault and Miss Morehead of the Morehead Production company, who are to have charge of the Lions Club minstrel, to be presented at the high school auditorium, Dec. 12, are in Portsmouth, and last night conferred with officials of the club.

Madame Chennault will direct the minstrel. She is the only woman director of men's minstrels in the United States, and gained fame as the director of the famous Pony Express pageant, and continental celebration. She is the author of the Pony Express Pageant and lyrics, and is noted for her spectacular dances. Madame Chennault has been producing minstrels in Texas, Oklahoma, and a number of Western states, and is in this territory for the first time. The name of the comedy after-piece which will be a special feature of the Lions minstrel is "Betty Who." Rehearsals will probably begin Monday.

Forest fire losses this season in California, Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho will amount to $125,000,000, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association has estimated.

PRISONER SHOT IN LEG BY OFFICER AFTER CHASE

The "telegraph tree" of India has electrical qualities which can kill people with weak hearts.

A man in Brighton, England, walked five miles in his sleep.

ACCUSED OF JUMPING BOND

Failing to stop even after a traffic officer had emptied his revolver into the back end of his machine east David Roe, 26, of Beechey, Ky., a bullet wound through the left thigh about noon Wednesday. He is in Hempstead hospital where an operation disclosed that the bullet had passed entirely through the thigh.

The bullet was from revolvers used by city Patrolmen Ray Brown and Steve Dixon and is thought to have been fired after Roe dismounted his machine and ran up a hillside out Munn's Run pike, more than two miles north of New Boston.

Roe is wanted by the city police for jumping a $500 bond here last week. He walked away from municipal court before his trial on a charge of possessing a machine gun.

According to the officers he is wanted on five felony charges in Kentucky and had been in trouble here before according to the police.

Enroute Home

Officers Ray Brown and Steve Dixon accompanied by the former's father, Tom Brown of near New Boston, were enroute home when the machine driven by Roe passed them on Gallia street just west of Mahert Road. When the car kept going at a fast rate narrowly missing school children just out of school, the officers took after the machine. According to the local officers Roe would drive clear over to the left side of the street to go around machines. Just below Ohio avenue, near New Boston, the officers managed to force ahead and drove around in front of Roe who was not to be stopped by such a move.

Club Will Hold Carnival

The B. and P. W. Club is going to give a mid-winter carnival in the auditorium, Gallia and bond streets, on Friday, December 5. It is going to be a real carnival with all kinds of attractions including dancing, a fortune teller's booth, fish pond, bazaar and other attractions. In the afternoon a card party will be held.

More Fans Hear Europe

OMAHA, NEB., November 27.—(By the United Press)—Omaha amateur radio fans were again successful last night in picking up English and continental broadcasting stations on the second night of the Trans-Atlantic tests. Half a dozen fans reported hearing Station 210, London. One heard Voxhaus at Berlin, and still another picked up a station at Rome. Practically all the large British stations were reported being heard.

CHICAGO, November 27.—(By the United Press)—Scores of Chicago radio fans heard European broadcasting stations during the "silent hour" set aside for the International Wave Tests last night. Station 2-BD Aberdeen, Scotland, was most frequently heard, though several other French and English announcers were heard.

LINCOLN, NEB., November 27.—(By the United Press)—With a two tube radio they made themselves, A. E. Anderson and J. A. Bunge, of Lincoln, last night heard broadcasting from the Eiffel Tower in Paris and two other European stations, they told the United Press today.

Local News

Chief Ollie Cassidy of New Boston returned from Trenton late last night with a "Curtis Bowling" alias "Bailord, Nicholson and Lee, wanted in the village on a charge of forging a check early last evening on Elmer Adkins, meat dealer. Bowling was taken into custody by Trenton police as he stepped off a Cannonball bus.

This morning in Mayor Bierley's court he pleaded guilty to forgery and was held to the grand jury under $500 bond. Bowling signed the name of Harry Rogers, New Boston restaurant man to a $14 check he passed on Adkins who knew Rogers.

Family breakfasts will be popular places tomorrow and hot mince pie will be a favorite dish. If the weather prognosticator is correct in his predictions. For indications are that the skies will be overcast and the mercury will drop many degrees. "Oh, well, everything tastes better on a cold day," one subscriber announced after telephoning in to ask what the weather was to be.

OBITUARY

John Martin

John Martin of Sciotoville passed away at his home on Woodland Avenue at 7:00 p. m. Tuesday. His death followed an illness of 5 weeks. He was removed from Hempstead hospital to his home on the 12th of this month and since then his condition has been gradually sinking. At Hempstead he underwent an operation for the removal of the lower prostate gland and bladder stones. After the operation, bronchial pneumonia developed which ended the life of one of Scioto county's oldest and best known citizens.

John Thomas Martin, son of William and Martha Martin, both deceased, was born in Nicholson county, Ky., on August 3, 1898. He spent his boyhood days at Harrison Furnace, and was married on Nov. 20, 1919 to Elizabeth Westwood of Sciotoville. Mr. and Mrs. Martin would have celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary next Saturday. One son was born to their union. Mr. Martin had been employed by the Norfolk and Western Railway for the past 23 years. In 1917 he was transferred to the Norfolk and Western division at Norfolk, Va., and made his home in that city until 1923 when he was returned to the N. & W. at this city. Since then he has made his home in Sciotoville. He is survived by his wife and one son, Earl C. Martin, an employe of the Selby Shoe Co. Print Shop. He is also survived by three brothers, Jesse Martin of Castle Hill; Allen Martin of Harrison Furnace; and Clayton Martin of Castle Hill. He was a member of the Odd Fellows. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at the Sciotoville M. E. church of which he was a member. Interment will be in Bennett cemetery, near Harrisonville. The remains will not be viewed at the church.

P. H. S. MUST STOP ALBANESE TO WIN FROM AQUINAS HIGH ON TURKEY DAY

Grid Tilt, Last Of The Season Starts at Two Bells

"Stop Albanese" will be the cry of the Portsmouth high school gridder and fans tomorrow, Turkey Day afternoon when the Red and Blue warriors clash once again with Coach Mike Boland's best outfit from Aquinas high school of Columbus.

Don Albanese, halfback and backfield star of the visiting team is the Italian coach eleven this year what Murphy was in 1922 when the crew was "stop Murphy" who was a 100 pound full back. Aquinas is coming to avenge the defeat handed their school's representative back in 1921 when the Red and Blue won 6 to 0. In 1922, Aquinas turned the tables and carried away a 6 to 0 victory on Thanksgiving Day. Last season P. H. S. lost to North Hill of Columbus 3 to 0 on Turkey Day afternoon.

The Aquinas eleven this season is as big and fast as in past years. Coach Mike Boland has a number of developing players that is to be feared. He has met with several years' success at Aquinas and this year is no exception.

Captain Monk of P. H. S. is the only player on the present team who fought against an Aquinas team. Monk was on the team in 1921 and 1922 when the Catholic lads performed against P. H. S. He has been busy for weeks telling his fellow players what to expect in the visiting team Thursday. Coach McComb of the Red and Blue squad has been drilling the locals hard despite the prevailing weather. All the locals came out of the fronton without serious injury and are ready for the hot dry battle. Aquinas beat Fronton 12 to 6 and the Red and Blue color bearers will go into the fray to defeat the upstarters just to demonstrate to Fronton how fortunate they were to get an even break with the locals here last Saturday. All the locals are hoping for a Saturday.

is continued good weather until after Thursday.

Relative to the work of Albanese a Columbus paper had the following:

"It is not difficult to recall the feats of the great Harley. His fame will live for years, but yet in Columbus there is another boy who is doing for his school the very thing that Harley did for East High. No effort will be made to compare Harley and the new comer. Suffice to say, the lads whose deeds are making high school history, remind one of Chic. No loftier praise could come to him."

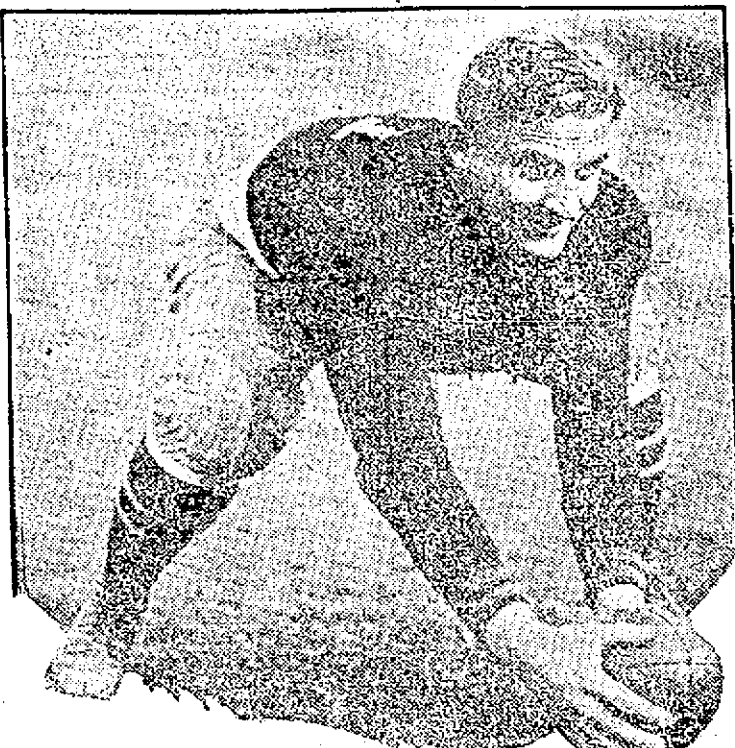

The youth referred to is Don Albanese, halfback at Aquinas, and who in June will graduate from the Mt. Vernon avenue school.

Last Friday we saw Albanese play against the rain, well-coached eleven of Nelsonville High.

Three runs were credited to the Aquinas star, one of 50 yards, another 60 yards and still another, 40 yards. After the touchdowns, he showed his versatility by adding points by dropping kicking.

The dashes of the Green and Gold athletes were not haphazard affairs. They came as the product of his own resources, dazzling speed, change of pace, whirling when tackled and vicious straight-arming. Rather elongated, though weighing above 160 pounds, Albanese is of a type more like Red Grange than Harley. He passes well and is a good kicker. His speed is unusual. His playing against Nelsonville was but a repetition of similar feats in earlier games. He may not play again this season as he did Friday, but the odds are that he will, and those who glory in football stylings at work should not miss the opportunity of observing the keenest high school backfield star advanced since Harley advanced to make history since Harley advanced to make history Saturday. All the locals are hoping for a Saturday.

Veteran Star Passing

D. V. GARBISCH

This will be the final year for Garbisch, West Point's great center. It will be his eighth season in college football, having played four years at Washington and Jefferson before entering West Point. In the Yale game, which ended in a 7-7 tie, the battle between Garbisch and Lovejoy, Yale's great captain and center, featured the game. Garbisch is confident of closing his college grid career by a decisive victory over the Navy.

Johnson Will Get Release If He Can Buy Ball Club

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Walter Johnson, pitching majesty of the world champion Senators will be rewarded for his long service to the club by his release only if he is able to close some ownership deal with another club that will fit in with his desire to settle down permanently with his family in the west.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, made plain this position of the management last night in scolding reports of an effort to interest Johnson in the St. Paul club of the American Association following the collapse of his deal for the Oakland club of the Pacific coast league. Griffith said a deal with the former club would not fall within the intent of his agreement with the pitcher for his release.

"A deal with the St. Paul club would not let Johnson stay in one spot more than his pitching for us and I positively would not give him his release for it," Griffith said. The club president gave Washington fans further hope that Johnson would carry on for the champions again next season by announcing that he had offered him a choice of two contracts, one for a year and the other for two years at a salary increase above the $12,000 the pitcher is reported to have received last season. He has not yet accepted either, Griffith said.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 26.—Minnesota football players made endurance records in the grueling 1924 season likely to stand for some time, figures compiled by Ted Wolder, student manager, disclosed today.

Louis Gross, veteran tackle, played throughout the eight games and captain Core was just four minutes behind that mark. Edberg was out 19 minutes all season, playing the full sixty minutes in four games. Abramson, guard, and Ascher, halfback, went the limit in seven contests. Wheeler, end, played in six contests without relief.

WAS W. R. FEE MURDERED IN CALIFORNIA?

Body of Former Local Banker Found Near Cabin in California Mountains; Skull Is Fractured; An Employee Being Questioned

The lifeless body of William R. Fee, founder of the Ohio Valley Bank here, was found yesterday near his cabin in the mountains near San Bernardino, Cal., where Mr. Fee had been located since leaving Portsmouth in 1913. Autopsy surgeons report finding a small fracture back of Mr. Fee's left ear, which might have been caused by a blow from a sandbag or blackjack. Officials of San Bernardino and Alhambra, Mr. Fee being located in the latter city, are making an effort to learn whether the banker was murdered. He was last seen last Saturday when he left his home in Alhambra when he stated that he was going to his cabin in the mountains to repair a radio aerial he had been using.

Miss Mary Watkins, employed by Mr. Fee, when placed on the witness stand at the coroner's inquest, today professed ignorance of the circumstances surrounding the death of her employer. Deep mystery seems to surround the death of Mr. Fee, who was well known here and in Milford, O., where he resided before coming to Portsmouth in 1906.

Body Is Found

Relative to the finding of Mr. Fee's body, an Associated Press message from San Bernardino, today to the Times Wednesday said: "SAN BERNARDINO, CAL., Nov. 26.—Miss Mary Watkins, on the witness stand at a coroner's inquest today, professed ignorance of the circumstances surrounding the death of her employer, William R. Fee, Alhambra bank president, whose body was found yesterday in the San Bernardino mountains near a cabin maintained by her. Sheriff W. R. Shay believes the banker was murdered. Mr. Fee had been missing since Saturday, when he went to the mountains with his wife. He was last seen when he told her he was going to repair a radio aerial at the cabin in the mountains place owned by a Los Angeles banker and occupied by the Fees.

Gives Explanation

At her home in Alhambra, Miss Watkins told of her trip out to her mountain cabin Saturday. She renewed her explanation of the finding of a suit of clothing identified as one worn by Mr. Fee by saying the garb had been given to her, some time ago by the banker for the purpose of providing hiking clothes for men guests. Officials have expressed the belief that the body had been placed in the position in which it was found some time Monday night. Miss Watkins said that an affectionate note signed "Mary" found near the body of the banker was without significance.

Autopsy surgeons reported they found a small skull fracture, such as might have been caused by a blow from a sandbag or blackjack. In the dead man's mouth, when he was found, was an unlighted cigarette.

ette, and in his hand a pair of pruning shears.

Posses Makes Search

Members of the posse who searched the hills yesterday for Fee said that they had traversed the location in Lytle Creek Canyon, where the body was found and that they had not seen it there when they passed yesterday. They also reported that while watching the cabin of Mary Watkins, an employee of the Fee banks, which was within 50 feet of where the body lay, they saw a man and woman enter the cabin last night and leave again fifteen minutes later. They could not definitely identify the pair.

Doctors here, after the first examination of Fee's body, expressed the opinion that he had been dead less than 48 hours.

Mr. Fee was a warm friend of W. S. Briggs of Waller street, who received the following telegram from Mrs. Fee this morning:

"Will disappeared from his mountain cabin last Saturday and was found dead Tuesday. Evidence indicates accident or foul play."

Mrs. W. R. Fee Was General Manager

Mr. Fee, when he first came to Portsmouth, bought stock in the Home Telephone Company and was made general manager of the company, holding that position until he became president of the Ohio Valley Bank. At the office of the telephone company it was stated that Mr. Fee still has stock in it. He and his family formerly resided in the property on Gallia street now occupied by the Episcopal church, just west of Waller. Later on Mr. and Mrs. Fee bought the property at Fourth and Waller streets now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alva Chabot. Their daughter, Miss Louise Fee, visited here during the past year. Mr. Fee was especially well known in business circles here and regretted having to leave Portsmouth, a change of climate being compulsory owing to the condition of his health.

Mr. Fee was one of the best posted men in the country on financial affairs, being a genius along this line. He also was a man who possessed real executive ability.

Duncan is Sent To Memphis

JACKSON, Nov. 26.—Pat Duncan, star outfielder who was formerly with the Cincinnati Reds and who was sent to the Washington Americans, 1924 champions, was transferred to the Memphis team of the Southern League.

Pat suffered a badly sprained ankle early last season and was unable to make as good a record as before. His transfer came as a surprise for it is unusual that a player who has hit .330 three years in succession, who established a nearly perfect fielding record and who has been a fine heady ball player should be sent to the minors for one bad season.

Evidently the transfer is only temporary and Pat will be in the big league play again. However, there is a rumor that Duncan will not consider a minor league offer.

Spurned Lover Had Wings Within "Halloween Tired"
Trousers In Wild Chase
MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 26.—Unrequited love of the ex-proprietor of a matrimonial agency, a negro with mysterious powers of hypnotism who lost his nerve at the last moment, a thrilling pursuit and arrest at revolver points in a speeding trolley car, were some of the elements in the case of an oil-haired, bell-bottom trousered youth, Joseph Sepico, of Madison, who came up before Judge C. Franklin Wilson in county court today.

The women in the case is pretty, black-eyed Mrs. Bertha Gardner, of whom Sepico is enamored. He had been proprietor of the agency that guaranteed "Rich Husbands for Beautiful Women" and wrote of his devotion in extravagant terms. Spurned, he sought assistance of Jim Roth, according to Prosecutor James Bolitho, who gives the following version of the affair: Sepico engaged Roth to hypnotize Mrs. Gardner's husband one evening, while the youth was to enter her home and plead his case.

The negro was to "hold Gardner's head" near a window, whereupon Sepico would approach with a cloth soaked with some mysterious substance and complete the husband's unconsciousness.

Jim Roth told the prosecutor the latter instructed him to lure Sepico to the Gardner home by seeming to comply. This was done, but when detectives leaped from ambush to seize the youth as he tiptoed toward the house with his anaesthetic, Sepico showed he had wings within the bell bottom trousers. He fled like a frightened hare to a nearby car line and leaped aboard a passing trolley. The detectives were only a leap or two behind. They caught the car and entered with drawn revolvers. Women screamed thinking it was a hold-up. Sepico was arrested.

HIS 27 CHILDREN

NEEDED HIM, SO COURT WAS LENIENT
CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—U. S. Commissioner Thomas J. Gregory met the champion father of southern Ohio in his office today and was so impressed that he permitted the man to arrange bail.

"Judge, I wish to introduce to you the champion father of southern Ohio," said Attorney Elliott. "Henry A. Griffith, farmer, Belfast, O., has 27 children and step-children who are rather desirous of his release from the Hamilton county jail, where he has been held in default of bail," Elliott said.

Griffith was arrested with Merl Wheeler and Ray Gustin a week ago, by federal prohibition agents and charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. A still and a quantity of moonshine were seized by the agents. He said that he was married three times and has 19 children of his own and 17 stepchildren, ranging in ages from five to 36 years old. He was unable to count the number of grand children. The youngest child was born, he said, when he was 56 years old. Elliott, through neighbors arranged

STOCK PRICES DISPLAY BUOYANT TONE

Spirited Bidding for Number of Specialties; Most of List Surges Upward

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Stock prices showed a buoyant tone at the opening of today's market. U. S. Steel common carried stock above 119 to the highest price in seven years with several other issues of this group touching 124 in reflection of the report of market improvement in the steel industry. Over 40 issues attained new maximum prices. Sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Stock prices displayed a buoyant tone at the opening of today's market. U. S. Steel common opened unchanged at 117 1/2 and then sold at 117 3/4, the highest price in seven years. International Nickel, U. S. Realty, Universal Pipe and Radiator, American Pipe and Leather, American Pacific and Canadian Pacific also sold at new top prices. The first sale of corn products was 10,000 shares at 27 1/2, up 1/2, and a record high. Yellow Cab was the only weak spot, breaking three points.

Yellow Cab extended its break to nearly 5 points in reflection of the cut in the dividend and American Can dropped a point, but the rest of the list surged upward with spirited bidding taking place for a number of specialties. U. S. Steel moved up to 117 3/4 and Studebaker and May Department Stores were added to the list of new highs. Savage Arms and Commercial Investment Trust each advanced about 2 1/2 points while International Express, Lackawanna, Western Pacific and Norfolk and Western were among the many stocks to sell a point or more above last night's final quotations. Foreign exchanges opened quiet and steady.

Price movements later developed considerable irregularity with heavy liquidation taking place in some of the popular industrials. General Electric dropped three points, American Can 2 1/2 and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Fishery Body 2 each. U. S. Steel common slipped back to 116 3/4, where it met good support. A subsequent violent rise in General Electric which scored 5 points to 7 1/2, a new high for year, brought about a fresh demand for the other steel shares. U. S. Steel common rallying about a point from its low while most of the independent stocks showed moderate gains. Special strength also developed in fertilizer stocks, some of the oil shares, Pittsburgh and West Virginia. Call money renewed at 1 1/2 per cent. Total sales

Grain Market Quiet; Prices Show Little Change

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Uncertainty as to the extent of the December deliveries tended to weaken the wheat market today during the early dealings. Lower quotations at Liverpool counted also as a depressing factor. On the declines, however, some aggressive buying developed and the market rallied. Opening prices, wheat ranged from 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 and May and December 1 1/2 to 1 1/2. The market was followed by upturns which in some cases went temporarily a little above yesterday's finish, but were succeeded by another sag.
